

The Lookout

Bedford High School's Monthly Student Run Newspaper

April Fools Issue

DUNKIN DONUTS ANNOUNCES BEDFORD HIGH SCHOOL BRANCH

The Donut Guy

Dunkin Donuts has recently announced a plan to open up a donut shop in the front lobby of Bedford High School. The decision was made because the popular donut chain was dissatisfied with their mere three locations that they currently have in Bedford. They feel they are not sufficiently meeting the basic needs of Bedford high students, who are forced to drive out of their way in the morning in order to get coffee or breakfast before school, and if they want to satisfy their donut craving during school they are forced to break the rules and drive to the store. Students want instant access to fresh donuts, breakfast sandwiches, and coffee throughout the day, and Dunkin's aims to provide that.

"We would like to thank Bedford High School for permitting us to open this shop," Said the owner of Dunkin Donuts, "and we promise to always have the freshest and most delicious food and beverages for all students. It is an honor to be the coffee shop of choice for Bedford High, we are excited to open this new location."

They were given the idea by the almost daily bake-sales that often sell Dunkin Donuts in the lobby at break. Dunkin Donuts saw that their donuts were being bought and resold for profit, so they figured they should take away the middle man and provide delicious donuts directly to Bedford High School students.

And the shop won't just be open during break, it will be accessible throughout the entire school day, so a student sitting in class hungry and bored of listening to lectures can easily walk down the hall and grab a bite to eat.

A KNIFE TALE

E Money

It was an ordinary day at BHS. All was quiet. Sam Bigda-Peyton strolled into engineering class without a thought in his mind. We were building our putt putt boats that fateful day. The f***ing Regatta was approaching. Where boat-racing legends are made. Where hours of toiling and tinkering with cocking, epoxy, and other chemical adhesives are put to the test. The f***ing Regatta gentlemen. This ain't no horse and pony show. This is where the men are separated from the boys (and woman from girls...).

Sam and I decided we would build her hull out of pink foam boards. She would glide across the water and finish in glorious fashion. A double boiler (engine) contraption would drive her magnificent body past all the others who stood in her path. The f***ing Regatta would be a glorious day for us all. But in order to construct her mighty hull we needed to cut the foam. After many invaluable class minutes were consumed we reached an ingenious resolution. We would shape her with a knife. But not just any knife. A large kitchen knife from the bowels of the foods room. This was no easy task but Samuel Bigda-Peyton put on his latex gloves (safety precaution from epoxy and such) and set out on the perilous journey to room C105.

He crossed the threshold of our classroom and a cool wind blew down lower H sending a chill down Samuel's spine. Shaking off this foolish omen he trekked on up the perilous ramp leading to the doors of four. As soon as he stepped past the doors nearest to the ramp a slight rumble shook the earth. This wasn't his

Cont. on pg. 3

FOREIGN LANGUAGE DEPARTMENT TO RAISE SECURITY

The Anchorman

The BHS foreign language department, known best for their relaxed enforcement of school rules, has announced a new stance against perpetrators. Sparked by the recent increase in cell phone usage in the upper C wing, Barbara Barnett and her team of foreign language staff have decided to make some changes in their section of the school. "We've seen a huge increase in the use of cell phones this year in our hallway and lots of kids seem to be using these "iPad" things," said Barnett, "It's like the school changed its electronic device policy and actually gave students those iPad devices or something."

To beef up security, the department is installing security cameras up and down the hallway. Dana Button has been put in charge of monitoring these cameras from the computer in her room and will be able to easily catch anyone using an electronic device, even during passing periods or break. The "text-book portion" of the foreign language budget has been spent on a special x-ray device that can detect copied homework, even through the thick metal lockers.

Cont. on pg. 2

SANTORUM 2012

Americana

With 4.0 standings and an A+ score as a congressman, who other than Rick Santorum should become our nation's next president? Santorum, one of the most successful government reformers in all of history, credits his career to his devout passion for God and conservatism. The United States thrives on pursuing an ideal society where everyone should be able to make their own choices and have equal rights. Santorum, a proud Pennsylvania resident and father of seven children, is avidly "pro-life". As he fights to protect the freedom and rights of the unborn, to preserve traditional marriage, to shrink our government and grow our economy, Santorum gives us hope that our country may return to previous, simpler times of traditional law.

From a conservative viewpoint, Santorum is great. He wishes to prevent women from having the choice between abortion or not; of course his four daughters would never face this conundrum. His campaign "No Child left behind" involves parents in the decision of

Cont. on pg. 3

BHS EATING CONTRACT

Donttaze Mebro

After seeing the astounding success of the BHS Dance contract this past January, Mr. Sills has decided to use the same method to regulate the manner in which students eat their lunches.

The teachers who chaperone the lunches are tired of watching the disgusting ways students consume their food, so they have imposed a series of strict regulations to clean up the cafeteria. They have complained that it is not the way that they ate when they were in high school, so it can't be tolerated.

The administration has also received numerous complaints from students who are hesitant to attend the school lunches because of the gross eating habits they are forced to witness.

"If the students want to eat that way, they'll have to do it somewhere else." Said BHS principal John Sills. We do not tolerate these inappropriate habits in our cafeteria, and we feel it is our right to control the way students eat." Sills also added that if students continue to break the rules, he will cancel all future lunches for the rest of the year, and he said, "Lunches are a privilege, not a right, if you abuse that privilege it will be taken away."

Rule 1: Students entering lunch will be subject to random searches, and a student caught trying to sneak their own food into the cafeteria will have the food confiscated and will be sent home.

Rule 2: Any student seen chewing with their mouth open or talking while eating will be given a ten minute timeout from lunch. If the infraction occurs during the second half of lunch, they are to leave the cafeteria and they do not get their food or their money back.

Rule 3: Students who stare at other students at their table when they are eating will be moved to an empty table and continue the remainder of lunch eating by themselves.

Rule 4: A student heard smacking their lips when they chew will not only be kicked out of lunch, but also given a 1-2 day suspension from school to reflect on their behavior.

Rule 5: Any student who drops a food item on the floor and eats it will be kicked out of that lunch and suspended from all future lunches

Rule 6: If a student is seen taking food from another students plate, that student will be arrested and escorted away from the lunch in handcuffs by Officer Wardwell.

Foreign Lang. cont. from pg 1

The foreign language department is not stopping there, however. A new set of punishments has been installed with the hopes of really giving rule-breaking students what they deserve. Students caught using or possessing a phone, iPad, or other electronic device will immediately be sent to Osvaldo Mejia's room to have that device destroyed. If any student is caught copying another student's assignment, both students will receive an automatic failing grade for the year. The foreign language computer lab is being converted into a small jail containing twelve cells. All second offenders will be placed in the jail for no less than three days. While in the jail, rule-breakers will be fed nothing but undercooked flan for the entirety of their sentence.

The foreign language department is most excited about the new insubordination offense, which includes having fun. Students who are seen smiling or laughing in the foreign language department will be sentenced to no less than one week in the foreign language jail. Barnett has put Lisa Taub in charge of handling all cases and making rulings on sentences. Taub declined interview but did share with us, "If they're (the students) in the hall and having fun, they're guilty. And they will pay."

BHS principal Jonathan Sills has backed and praised this new system as part of his "high-school-cannot-be-fun" project in order to be hired as the new Bedford superintendent. "High school is a place for learning," explained Mr. Sills, "having fun will not be tolerated."

The new foreign language system is expected to go into effect May of this year.

MATT COUGHLIN'S KNEE ANNOUNCES RETIREMENT

Brett Favre

After 18 rough years, Matt Coughlin's right knee has announced that it is permanently retired from physical activity. On Tuesday March 13th the knee suffered its fourth ligament tear during a pick up basketball game and recently underwent its third surgery in the past two years. "I just can't take it anymore," the knee said during its retirement speech, "I have been letting Matt down for years and it is finally time to give up the charade."

Many speculated that this announcement would happen in October after Coughlin's knee tore its MCL in a football game, and he was ruled out for the season. Matt's knee added, "After Matt's football career was over, I didn't want him to be done playing sports, so I convinced him I would be stable enough to play some pick up basketball, but I have disappointed him again."

After the first three tears, it seemed that the knee's injuries were happening in increasingly important situations. The first occurred when he was lifting weights, the second during an intense football practice, and the third finally occurred during a Friday night football game. Because of this pattern the knee was optimistic that it could only be torn during a very important athletic event, and not in something so trivial as a pick up basketball game.

Last May, Coughlin's knee led him and his team to the finals in the dodgeball tournament without any sign of injury, and this gave him hope that it had made a full recovery. "He was diving and jumping with extreme quickness," said Matt's knee, "and I wasn't holding him back at all. I thought I was back to normal. I had no idea I would tear two more times in the next year. I thought I was better than that."

Coughlin's knee is worried about its public image, and wants people to remember who it used to be, before all the surgeries.

"I have been operated on so many times," said the knee, "that I can't even recognize myself in the mirror anymore. I look like a completely different knee. I just want to go back to the way I used to be, when Matt could run and jump and compete athletically." Upon reminiscing about the past, Coughlin's knee began to cry, adding that it feels like an utter disappointment.

Coughlin's knee also added that if it were to try to come back after this injury and tore another ligament then it could be replaced by a younger mechanical knee, and it would rather retire on its own terms than be replaced by a machine.

BEDFORD POLICE LOG

Jeff Wardwell

- 2:11 a.m. Police responded to male wheelchairs down Carlisle road towards Carlisle
- 6:55 a.m. Officers responded to a suspicious motor vehicle in the back parking lot of Bedford High School. Vehicle was not identified due to camouflage
- 7:43 a.m. Officers responded to a Suspicious envelope at BHS. Contents turned out to be Cocaine to be sold at a PTA bake sale
- 7:55 a.m. Police received a report of Teens leaving school
- 11:30 a.m. officers responded to a report of youths appearing to be intoxicated at the Bedford Travelodge
- 2:25 p.m. Police received a report of a large group of youths leaving school 5 minutes early.
- 4:20 p.m. Police received a report of possible substance abuse outside of Bedford Farms
- 5:46 a.m. Police responded to a report of 2 adolescent males breaking into cars stealing GPS units
- 6:08 p.m. Police received a report of an erratic operator on South Road.
- 6:43 p.m. Police received a call from a resident of North Road reporting a possible scam activity.
- 7:38 p.m. Police respond to boy wheelchairs down Carlisle road
- 8:00 p.m. Officers perform usual Elm street surveillance
- 9:15 p.m. Officers took nightly lap around BHS bus loop, stopping at the courts to watch teens play basketball.
- 10:27 p.m. Officers respond to reports of Crips walking down Winterberry Way first encounter with an earthquake but this one was different. Before he knew it the doors behind him and to his left near the back parking lot door swung shut with a clang. In unison the ones to his right leading down lower B crashed shut; and before his very eyes his pathway was blocked by the two doors leading down lower E. Samuel stopped in his tracks, embracing the piercing silence. Quickly analyzing the situation he refueled his energy from the conveniently located water fountain to his left and took one deep breath. With a cry of anguish he released a monstrous roar unleashing the beast within! Coming out of his three-point stance he drove blocked the door in front of him and tossed it like opposing lineman in his path. The doors couldn't handle the immense power driving them open and were left hanging limp on their hinges in submission.

Knife tale from pg 1

With his path cleared he soldiered on and kept his mind on getting that knife. He proceeded to make his way down lower E when a yellow sign blocked his path. CAUTION WET FLOOR was what he read. "Fools", he thought to himself. Insulted by the fact that someone believed that a simple wet floor would stop him from reaching his goal, he latched onto the lockers to the right of the spill with his iron grip. Painstakingly he shimmied his way, hand-over-hand, to avoid the liquid obstacle. When he reached the other side he turned and spat with disgust on the unidentified spilt liquid and continued on without a second thought.

Believe it or not Samuel felt that he had wasted enough time and with blistering speed took off down lower C. When the dust had settled, the entrance to C105 appeared before him. After an epic journey he believed that he had reached the end. But what Samuel didn't realize was that his real journey was only just beginning.

When he entered the room he saw a figure in an apron with matching oven mitts on either hand. Warily he approached and saw that in between the mitts shone a fantastic tool. A rubber handle with an ergonomic grip was securely fastened to a long blade. This was his Excalibur. He was King Samuel. He took a knee and bowed deeply. No words were exchanged because none were needed. With his palm out he grasped the blade in his latex glove covered and left the room.

It was at this time that Samuel was faced with a choice. To go back the way he came, or to make a new path using an alternate route. Those who know him already knew that he, like Robert Frost, always chooses the road not taken. Step after step he overcame the great staircase leading to the front office. He reached the open area about to step down to make his way through lower A, when his eyes met a guardian on the school. Its icy stare locked him in place as it dropped its papers and carved a path to where Samuel stood, frozen in disbelief. With a swift, decisive motion the blade was removed from the grip of Samuel The Great.

To make a long story shorter Samuel never retrieved the blade. This is a tragedy my friends. A great failure in many respects. Our hero was stopped and our story ended. You may think this story was pointless and that you have wasted your time reading this when you could have been doing something productive. But there is a life changing message to realize; and that is that you should always think twice before having a sharp knife in your latex glove covered hand walking by the front office. Always.

Dunkin Donuts from pg 1

No more arriving late to school due to long drive-through lines. No more having to leave school to get your mid-day pick-me-up, and no more worrying about your coffee spilling or getting cold on the long, arduous ride back to school.

Principal Sills initially expressed concern over the idea of having a Dunkin' Donuts store within the school, but chose to allow it so he could enjoy smell of donuts wafting into his office throughout the day. Sills also could not pass up the economic opportunity, as Dunkin' Donuts will pay a sizeable portion of their profits to Bedford High for allowing them to open the shop.

Two of the main opposition to the opening were the Buc Stop and the lunch ladies, both of whom will lose business to the new store. "It just isn't fair that a large chain can open up a branch within the high school," said one Buc Stop employee, "they are going to put small shops like us out of business."

Bedford High students expressed great excitement upon learning the news of the opening. "That's so awesome!" said an anonymous Buccaneer, "Now I don't have to skip class to drive to Gammy's to get coffee and donuts!"

One concerned student said, "I would rather have bake sales because they go towards good causes instead of just giving money to large corporations, but it will be nice to have access to donuts and coffee all day long."

Dunkin Donuts has not yet announced the date they plan to open the shop, but speculators predict that it will be open and ready for business before April break.

Santorum from pg. 1

how their Child's education should be achieved. We want bright futures for our children so why not have bold parents who grew up in times of pro-life and anti-gay societies choose for them. Because Santorum's ultimate goal is to create a country with traditional American values he strongly supports the second amendment- the right to bear arms. This leaves our country with gun owners who may not be eligible, and allows men to rule once again! Unfortunately, for his campaign one of his sons has recently come out. So, seniors who are 18, don't forget to vote Santorum 2012 - tell everyone you see!

SENIORITIS... WHAT'S THAT?

Junior Mctryhard

Recently, many students have been very upset about the change of snack options in the vending machines. Numerous students love the awful-for-you candy and chips the vending machine offers, and are always looking forward to midday eats or substitutes for breakfast. Students like to munch on these goodies during break, in between classes or during lunch. "What has this school come to?" asked Monika Delacruz, protesting about the new "treats" in the vending machine. Given that many students are opposed to the new items, the school will now be selling even better treats! Instead of bags of Doritos, there will be a cans of fiber rich lentil beans. Candy bars will be replaced with baggies full of tofu, kale and flax infused cookies. How delicious! Brussel sprouts, grapefruits, lemons, limes and a variety of other yummy fruits and vegetables will also be available to all students and faculty. Not only are these treats tastier than the usual chips and candy, but also they are much healthier for you too. The administration hopes that the new vending machine goodies will be a big hit among the teacher and student body. Seeing as the new items are so healthy, students will be allowed and encouraged to leave class at any point in time to buy a snack from the vending machine. Teachers are hoping this new policy will help students to eat healthier all day.

VENDING MACHINE GOODIES

The Health Nut

Recently, many students have been very upset about the change of snack options in the vending machines. Numerous students love the awful-for-you candy and chips the vending machine offers, and are always looking forward to midday eats or substitutes for breakfast. Students like to munch on these goodies during break, in between classes or during lunch. "What has this school come to?" asked Monika Delacruz, protesting about the new "treats" in the vending machine. Given that many students are opposed to the new items, the school will now be selling even better treats! Instead of bags of Doritos, there will be a cans of fiber rich lentil beans. Candy bars will be replaced with baggies full of tofu, kale and flax infused cookies. How delicious! Brussel sprouts, grapefruits, lemons, limes and a variety of other yummy fruits and vegetables will also be available to all students and faculty. Not only are these treats tastier than the usual chips and candy, but also they are much healthier for you too. The administration hopes that the new vending machine goodies will be a big hit among the teacher and student body. Seeing as the new items are so healthy, students will be allowed and encouraged to leave class at any point in time to buy a snack from the vending machine. Teachers are hoping this new policy will help students to eat healthier all day.

THE DECISION 2.0

King James

On July 8th in the summer of 2010, Lebron James went on live, prime-time television and announced his decision to leave his hometown Cavaliers so he could "take my talents to south beach", as he put it. This had been the biggest free agency move in the history of the NBA and maybe professional sports, until this summer. Peyton Manning has recently agreed to sign with the Denver Broncos, after being released by the Indianapolis Colts. It was clearly the best decision for Peyton if he wants to win a Lombardi trophy.

Peyton could have chose any of the numerous teams that were chasing him, and though his talents may be best used elsewhere, Peyton wants rings. The San Francisco 49ers and the Denver Broncos were the only two teams that had the players to make this happen. Last year the 49ers had likely the best defense in the league, a workhorse running back, and a talented, young offensive line. Denver offered amazing wide receivers in Demaryius Thomas and Eric Decker, Von Miller, who had one good year on defense last year, and cornerback Champ Bailey, who is 33 years old.

Obviously Denver is the better team, but they had another characteristic that Peyton found necessary for any team he was going to play for. The Broncos are in the AFC. Peyton has always dreamt of playing his brother Eli in the super bowl and if they both played in the NFC this would be impossible. Peyton wants to play his brother in the big game, because he hates him and wants to embarrass him in front of billions of viewers and then be able to rub it in his face until the day they die.

XXL DROPS ANOTHER FRESHMAN CLASS FOR THE MASSES

Xzibit

XXL magazine announced the top ten freshman rappers of 2012, again garnering the bickering of hip-hop heads around the country. In fact, XXL, as always has done a fabulous job with this year's lineup. We have: Machine Gun Kelly, Danny Brown, Kid Ink, Roscoe Dash, Hopsin, Macklemore, Don Trip, Iggy Azalea, French Montana.

To begin, I'd like to thank XXL for nominating those relatively unknwn artists who will surely blow up in the near future. Macklemore – the genius behind Adele's "Someone Like You" – is one ankle away from being one of the backup dancers in Madonna's Superbowl Halftime performance, and he already has a contract to do backup vocals for Lady Antebellum. Don Trip, a single father in his young twenties, is just a pure talent and he'll clearly go places – how could he not? His flow is a spot on mix of Ye, JayZ, Rozay, Luda, TI, Soulja Boy, the rest of the freshman class, Wiz, Birdman, Drake ..... The other undiscovered star on the roster is Iggy Azalea aka Kreyashawn 2.0. As long as she continues to put out songs like her hit single P****, she'll soon have her own niche in the rap game. The highest rated "Youtube" comment on the music video for Kid Ink's powerful "I Just Want It All" reads, "Wiz Brown? Or Chris Khalifa?" This hater clearly just doesn't respect Ink's versatility; Kid's got a future.

Its really no stretch to say that all these undiscovered candidates are just brimming with potential. After all, XXL is famous for its uncanny talent to predict the future of the rap game. Formerly underground rapper and freshman of 2011 Fred the Godson is now a household name!

WE WILL WE WILL BLOCK YOU

Freddie Mercury

We have all walked down the freshman hallway in the morning at one point or another this year, dodging around the different "cliques" that take over the hallway in little crowds blocking every entrance or exit. We hear talk of the latest show, sporting event, or funny thing that happened the other day. Most of these "hall-blockers" are too involved their conversation to care about others trying to get to class. The rest of them are wandering to halls looking for someone to talk to or some place to go. There are very few students who try to get their friends to move out of the way for someone trying to get by in a hurry. No matter how tedious it is to try to get through, students and teachers still try to make their way to class. Ms. Walker, a teacher who has a classroom in the hectic hallway said "I have to leave my home hours in advance, just so that I can wade through the millions of students blocking the hallway in B wing each morning!" Wow! Since this is such a big problem to so many, the school has hired traffic cops to direct students and teachers to and from their classroom in B wing. The hallway will now work just like the road. All the same rules apply. Freshman must download the new "traffic app" to their I pads and will be required to use the built in turn signal and horn at all times. This will allow people to navigate B wing without any trouble, and will also force the freshman to begin to learn the rules of the road. The rules of the hallway will be in effect as of the 1st of April, and they will remain for the rest of the year until it seems that the freshman have learned their lesson. It will take some getting used to, but everyone must abide by the rules of the hallway.

THE AMERICAN LIFESTYLE

Ronald McDonald

In America, we the people share a lifestyle and code of morals so standardized that you can assume any random person walking on the street lives by. Many of us engage in an active party life, which includes much alcohol consumption. Another normality for us is to eat a ton of unhealthy foods. Literally 2000 pounds worth per person per year. Are schools are also known to give kids days out of school, for holidays that nobody cares about, nor celebrates. These are all strong qualities of the American citizens' lifestyle.

America has too many school days, and these pointless holidays help keep kids where they belong: out of school. The less school the better. It isn't like keeping kids in school more is going to make them learn anything. Every single American consumes fast food very frequently. It's great that you can just walk over to a fast food place to buy your favorite unhealthy meal anytime you want. The better we maintain this lifestyle the more unhealthy foods and the higher the obesity rate is in America, which is only at a weak 35.7% for adults and 16.9% for children. Another aspect about the current American lifestyle that we must maintain is our obsession for partying. I personally don't know one person who isn't going to multiple parties a week and it is great to see people lose brain cells by the second while consuming alcohol whether it is legal or not. In summary, not only do we need to maintain our common lifestyle, but we need to make it more prevalent. I fear if we don't that our obesity rates will fall and more people will ultimately live better lives, and we can't let that happen, for the sake of our country. Don't stop the party, and don't go on that diet if you don't want to run our country into the ground.

SEPARATED AT BIRTH

Tim Tebow and Nick Nocera

Kristen Stewart and Sammi Downes

Ian Harding and Mr. Boschetto

50 Tyson and Olan Abner

WHAT TO DO WHEN SOMEONE IS ANNOYING

Doctor Phillis

Ever have one of those days when you're sitting next to someone in the computer lab and you just want to chop their head off? Well The Lookout staff has thought of some ideas to help you deal with that really annoying person without getting sent to jail, or worse, Mr. Sills.

- 1) Whenever they come near, try to busy yourself by talking to other people or organize your locker; hopefully they'll see that you're busy/distracted and they'll leave you alone.
- 2) Nicely address them about your problem. Try saying something you like about that person first, for example, "I love that you care so much about my life, but there's a lot going on in my life right now and I think it'd be best if I could just have a little space, some ME time, you know?" By saying it like this, it looks like YOU'RE the one with the problem, and they're doing you a favor by letting you figure it out.
- 3) Ask your friends to help you. If, after you confronted them, they're still not getting the message. Ask a friend to talk to them about it for you. If they hear the same message from another source, it's more likely that they'll realize that what you said to them is true and they'll give you that space you so badly desire.
- 4) Avoid them. If you see them from a distance, walk in the opposite direction. Don't be super obvious about it, but if you don't want to talk to them you have every right not too. If they usually sit at a certain table during lunch, try sitting somewhere different. If you go back to the same routine you always did, they'll think nothing has changed and will bother you just as much as before.
- 5) If all else fails, just ignore them. Yeah, it sucks. But sometimes the best way to get a person off your back is to not give them a response. Eventually, they'll get the message.

We hope that these tips will help you to get that super annoying person out of your life, at least for the moment, and you'll be able to get the space you need. However, once you feel like you can handle that person again, try hanging out with them and explain the situation. Hopefully by now, they'll know how to act around you, and you'll be able to develop a great long-lasting friendship.

TIK TOK...WHEN IS IT TIME FOR BETTER LYRICS?

Simon Cowell

In 2009, Ke$ha came out with the song "Tik Tok" and it became a huge hit that everyone knew almost instantly. However, has anyone really listened carefully to the lyrics? To be honest, they barely make any sense at all. Why did that song become so popular?

Wake up in the morning feeling like P Diddy ---> What does P. Diddy feel like bright and early?

(Hey, what up girl?) ---> Not much...who are you?

Grab my glasses, I'm out the door, I'm gonna hit this city

(Lets go)

Before I leave, brush my teeth with a bottle of Jack ---> Ew...have fun hitting the city with brown teeth and disgusting breath.

'Cause when I leave for the night, I ain't coming back ---> I wouldn't either, if I brushed my teeth with whiskey!
Embarrassing...

I'm talking pedicure on our toes, toes ---> Where else would they be, be?

Trying on all our clothes, clothes

Boys blowing up our phones, phones ---> Are they, though?

Drop-topping, playing our favorite CDs--> I hope this is not one of them

Pulling up to the parties

Trying to get a little bit tipsy ---> You've got fantastic judgement, Ke$ha.

Don't stop, make it pop ---> What are you doing at these parties, microwaving popcorn?

DJ, blow my speakers up --> But then there would be no more music...

Tonight, I'mma fight ---> Violence is not the answer.

'Til we see the sunlight

Tick tock on the clock

But the party don't stop, no

Ain't got a care in world, but got plenty of beer ---> Oh, great! All my problems are solved, for sure!

Ain't got no money in my pocket, but I'm already here ---> Oops.

And now, the dudes are lining up cause they hear we got swagger

But we kick em to the curb unless they look like Mick Jagger ---> Any reason? Again with the poor judgement.

Sorry, but have you seen Mick Jagger? His attractive years were 30 years ago.

I'm talking about everybody getting crunk, crunk

Boys tryin' to touch my junk, junk

Gonna smack him if he getting too drunk, drunk ---> Oh yeah, the only reason you should be slapping him is because he's drunk. Not because he's touching your junk. Cool.

Po-po shut us down ---> Every party has a pooper...

BEFORE THEY WERE STARS

All Idois Winn

Everyone starts out being young, and some are lucky enough to grow up and be transformed into a celebrity that is recognized all over the world. But can you recognize them as youngsters, before they were famous?

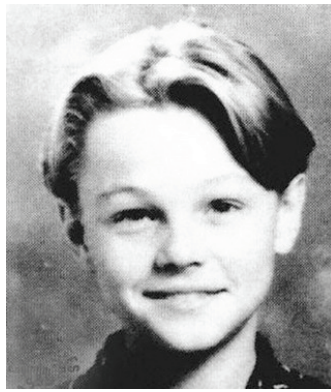

1.

2.

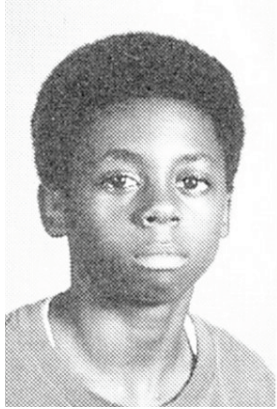

3.

4.

5.

6.

7.

8.

9.

1. Chris Brown 2. Eminem 3. Leonardo DiCaprio 4. Avril Lavigne
5. Lil Wayne 6. Katy Perry 7. Kim Kardashian 8. Lady Gaga 9. Justin Timberlake

BEST PRACTICAL JOKES EVER

Meg Ryan

It's the first of April, time to pull all those classic April Fools' gags. Whether we're plotting something as simple as a dangerously placed whoopee cushion, shocking gum, or even jumping out of your sibling's closet with a monster mask on, we all want to put the "April Fool's" on somebody. But what is the perfect practical joke, one that puts a grin on everyone's face?

A poll of Bedford High School students concludes that the classic whoopee cushion is the most liked practical joke. About one quarter of the students love the result of an unsuspecting victim sitting on one of these balloons of laughter. "...No matter what situation you are in, it is always funny. It's a classic!" says Leah Wiesner, a senior here at Bedford High School. Trailing behind by a few votes, at number 2 on the list is the also classic "pie in the face" gag! About one fifth of BHS students love watching a unsuspecting victim get a faceful of banana cream or even shaving cream! "It is quite comical to receive a pie of shaving cream to the face," says senior Alex Cordero. Whether we love the whoopee cushion, the "pie in the face" gag or any other gag, they all have one thing in common: pleasure for the pranker!

